The League was founded in 1890s as an advocacy group for blind workers, and became a registered trade union in 1899, affiliating with the Trade Union Congress in 1902. Reiss' introduction rightly sets out the historical importance of the movement: it was a "genuine poor people's movement" (1) with branches across the UK and Ireland led by and for blind people.

University of Bath

In its earliest years, Blind Workers Against Charity (BWAC) was a rather haphazard organisation, founded in the last decade of the nineteenth century - it is not wholly clear what year the organisation started, as Reiss notes, as it began as an organic single-issue campaign. After considering his evidence, Reiss ascribes BWAC's
