Glycans are involved in all biological processes, influencing the functioning of all human cells. Our main goals are to identify glycans as novel therapeutic targets and to contribute to develop innovative immunotherapies to treat patients with cancer and with congenital disorders of Glycosylation (CDG).

Our Team Macauley Lab

Caleb is excited to be part of the Macauley Lab to learn about the field of glycoimmunology, apply and increase his knowledge of biochemistry, and gain practical research experience under the guidance of the diverse Macauley Lab team. By working with the Macauley Lab, Caleb hopes to contribute to the study of the glycosciences.
