The value of any vehicle will depend on the cosmetic condition, mileage, mechanical condition and origin. Maintenance history, option upgrades, performance history and current regional economy could have an effect on final trade-in price.

How to get the most value from your trade-in - Autofocus.ca

This involves subtracting the value of your trade-in from the retail price of its replacement before any of the amounts are taxed. This effectively reduces the tax amount you need to pay on your new vehicle. For instance, if the car you want to buy costs $40,000 and your trade-in value is $25,000, then the taxable amount is the difference of those two numbers, which is $15,000.
